This Stove has more good quilities combined than can be found in any other to we now manufactured. The surface is smooth, easily kept clean, but rich in its appearance. The fire arch is of the usual width and heighth and will take in wood 25 inches long and 6 inches in diameter. The boiler holes rangs from 8 to 14 inches, and it has an elevated oven which is so arranged that the fire is thrown once and a half around it, thereby extinguishing all the heat the fuel will make. This stove is well arranged for warm weather; by marning the dameer down, the fire passes under the oven and into the pipe, and does not cause any more heat in the room than a square or low oven stove.

THE ADMIRABLE QUALITIES

of this stave—if there were none others—would be the construction and form of the plates, and of such unust thickness, consequently it must be more durable than any other stove of modern manufacture.

I also intend to keep on hand some foreign made stoves, and if possible such an assortment that all can be suited.

Also a general assortment of Foundry Castings, Stove Fipe and Stove Trimmings.

I shall also have for sale a superior article of Sugar Cane Stills, manufactured by Reed & Roberts.

It has been a wonder for years why Good Stoves could not be made in Warren. I have learned by experience that stoves manufactured in Warren have not been considered a No. I article. I think I can explain the reason of this. There has been in opposition between entern stoves and those manufactured in Warren and It is a self evident fact, that the great majority of foreign stoves are not thicker than seven by nine window; glass, while the stoves made in Warren have generally been hearles; consequently they could not be sold as cheap as the foreign stoves and afford equal profit, and those engaged in manufacturing, have many times undowntedly, bought and worked a poor and cheap grade of iron, so us to compete with the foreign stoves. The result has been, the stoves made here have cracked and going to pieces, while the foreign make have stood but for a short time before burning out, and as a general thing these that have bought of either class have been disappointed.

N. B. I should be pleased to have those wishing to purchase give me a call and Examine Thoroughly the class of Stoves that I Manufacture. I will surrant as good a quality of from worked into my stoves as there as on the globe. I am determined to make that quality of stoves that as soon as the public becomes acquainted with their merits and worth, they will be bought by those needing stoves and considered as surrent as a Particular thention given to the wholesale trade.
